Some time ago the necessity of checking the quality of the milk supplied to the Civil Hespital was very clearly demonstrated to the Civil Medical Staff, and it was decided that once a month samples from the morning and evening milk delivered by the contractor were to be analyzed. To enable me to form a proper estimate of the quality of the milk an analysis is made, regularly once a month, of a sample selected at the Contractor's Farm from the mixed product of the whole Dairy. Too much weight cannot be attached to the necessity of providing the sick with milk of the best quality seeing that in many cases it, forms their sole article of diet. Mr. Rogers, the Hospital Steward, has been, for some months, in the habit of noting the Specific Gravity and Temperature of every delivery so that all possible precautions are now taken to prevent an inferior article being sent up to the wards for the pa-

I drank about a mouthful, and fanoving from the taste that there was something wrong, I carelessly threw overboard the greater part of the beverage. I soon felt very violent pains about the region of the stomach, and about five minutes after drinking the coffee I vemited. On hearing of the occurrence the Captain gave me an emetic and something to drink. None of the vomits were preserved; what remained of the coffee was placed in a small bottle and handed over to the Doctor soon after our arrival in Hongkong.
